Further details

Heavy rain is expected to affect southern Scotland from early Monday, then move northwards across central and eastern Scotland through Monday. In many locations 20-40mm of rain may fall in a 12-18 hour period, with peaks in excess of 80mm possible over high ground. Although some isolated thunderstorm activity is expected, the heavy rainfall aspect has now been deemed to be of greater significance.

Reason for update

The category has been changed from thunderstorm to heavy rainfall, with reduced impacts, and updates to the warning area and headline rainfall accumulations.

Very low likelihood of medium impacts
